- 2) In the event of the conclusion of the Agreement in accordance with Art. 68² or 69 of the Civil Code, i.e. by the Recipient's tacit acceptance of the Service Provider's offer or by the Service Provider's commencement of the performance of the Agreement, it is considered that the Parties concluded the Agreement on the terms specified by the Service Provider, taking into account the GTCS, if the content of the offer or other statement addressed to the Recipient indicated that the Agreement would be concluded on the terms specified in the GTCS or if the GTCS applied to an Agreement previously concluded by the Parties.
- 3) The offer may only be accepted without reservations. If the Recipient, in response to the Service Provider's offer, presents its objections to the offer, this is considered a new offer that requires acceptance by the Service Provider.

ARTICLE 3. TERMS OF PROVIDING THE SERVICE

- 1) The Recipient will either define the requirements for the Application the creation of which it expects from the Service Provider as part of the Service, or will choose one of the Service Provider's already available offers. It is possible for the requirements to be defined generally and for their specification to take place in the course of providing the Service.
- 2) In response to the Recipient's expectations, the Service Provider will present an offer for the provision of the Service or, if a ready offer is selected, present the Recipient an Agreement to confirm the terms of the offer.

The Service Provider is also not responsible for the proper functioning of the Third-Party Software.
- 6) During the provision of the Service, the Recipient is obliged to cooperate with the Service Provider, in particular by participating in meetings and tests arranged by the Service Provider with prior notification to the Recipient.
- 7) The performance of the Service will end with the acceptance of a functioning Application and, if included in the subject of the Agreement, providing the Recipient with access to Third-Party Software or other tools used to create the Application, and depending on the scope of the Service, it may also include publishing the Application in App Store, Play Store, or in a dedicated domain.

The submission by the Recipient to the Service Provider of the information referred to in the preceding sentence does not release the Recipient from its obligations specified in the Agreement.

- 1) Changing the completion date for the performance of the Service agreed in the Agreement requires the consent of the Service Provider or the Recipient; such consent may be provided by means of electronic correspondence. - 2) The completion date for the performance of the Service is the date of acceptance of the Application or the date of its positive verification by Apple or Google in App Store or Play Store, or its readiness for publication in a dedicated domain, unless the Parties agree otherwise.
- 3) If the Recipient fails to participate in the scheduled acceptance of the Application, without a justified reason, the Service Provider has the right to carry out the acceptance on its own. The acceptance carried out in this way will be effective for the Recipient.

The Service Provider should deliver the Application in accordance with the Agreement and the attached documents, in particular, the Application should comply with the relevant applicable standards and legal provisions, the Service Provider's assurances provided to the Recipient as to the properties of the Application or the Application properties published by the Service Provider. ARTICLE 7. GUARANTEE § 8.

- 1) The Recipient is obliged to examine the Application immediately after its receipt and during the tests. - 2) The Parties decide to exclude the application of the provisions on the warranty for defects in relation to the subject of the Agreement.

result of using the Application in accordance with the law and conditions specified in the Third-Party Software, if any.

- 2) The Recipient guarantees that it is entitled to all rights to the data or any works provided to the Service Provider for use in the performance of the Agreement, and in the event of claims against the Service Provider by other persons for the use of these data or works, it undertakes to release the Service Provider from any liability in this regard.
- 3) The Service Provider declares that in the event of works to which rights are vested in other persons being used in the process of performing the Agreement, it will inform the Recipient of this fact and indicate the scope of the Recipient's rights in this regard.
- 4) On the day of the performance of the Service, referred to in § 2 sec. 7 of the GTCS, the Service Provider grants the Recipient, as part of the remuneration referred to in § 7 of the GTCS, a non-exclusive license for the Application for an indefinite period, in the following fields of use:

- 5) The Service Provider's granting of the license to the Recipient, referred to in sec. 4 above, is not limited in time or territory, but is limited by the rights to the Third-Party Software. In the event of a breach of the rights to the Third-Party Software by the Recipient, the Recipient bears all responsibility for such action and undertakes to indemnify the Service Provider from any liability if other entities raise any claims against the Service Provider as a result of the breach of these rights by the Recipient.
- 6) The Agreement entitles the Recipient, without additional remuneration to the Service Provider, to transfer the license to the Recipient's legal successors, as long as it does not violate the rights to the Third-Party Software, and does not transfer the license to entities competing with the Service Provider's business.
